The Fishing Season

This is the time of year blood rises in the veins of the millions of fishing Americans. From now until fall fish will be taken in the streams and lakes of every state — many of which have been frozen over during the winter.

What is it about fishing that attracts so many? One expert claims it's the natural instinct of hunting food — the basic drive to survive. Other factors are the break from the hectic pace of American life and the fellowship and beauty offered.

To help the beginner, and remind the non-expert, here are the basic rules of fishing: Best time is at dawn and dusk. The hour after a changing tide (in salt water) is good. If fish are spawning, fishing is almost invariably good, with any bait. The period just before bad weather is often good. If the bad weather lasts several days the period immediately afterward may be good again. A steady barometer is not as good as a rising or falling glass and falling pressure is generally better than a rising pressure. A slight wind to ripple the water is desirable. Follow these general rules and catch more fish! — Americus (Ga.) Times-Recorder

Tardy Advice

About a week after the April 15 deadline for filing federal income tax returns, Alvin Kolak, collection chief for the Internal Revenue Service's district office in Cincinnati, revealed a wrinkle in the tax laws few persons know about.

If a person's return shows that he owes the government money, a year's delay in filing can mean a fine of about 37 per cent on the unpaid balance. Mr. Kolak said, however, that although the law states everyone must file an income tax by April 15, the law does not impose a penalty for late filing on persons who are owed refunds. He said that persons due refunds can wait up to three years to file and still get their full refunds. Since about 50 per cent of the nation's taxpayer's apply for refunds, Mr. Kolak said, half of the taxpayers really didn't have to worry about that April 15 deadline. NOW he tells us. — Charleston (S.C.) News and Courier

Series of Fights Near Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — The Royal Laotian Army has abandoned its last outpost on the Bolovens plateau in southern Laos, giving North Vietnam more supply routes down to Cambodia and South Vietnam. Military sources in Vientiane said commanders in southern Laos ordered the evacuation Wednesday of Houei Kong, 300 miles southeast of the Laotian capital, because the isolated outpost could not withstand an expected attack.

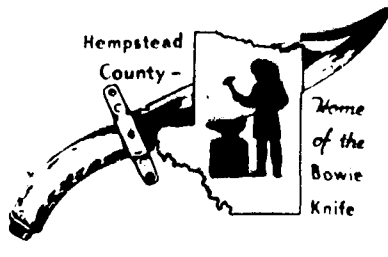

The sources said the troops withdrawing westward clashed several times with the North Vietnamese, but there were no casualty reports.

North Vietnamese forces captured the other two government posts on the Bolovens plateau, the towns of Pak Song and Ban Houei Sai, on Sunday and inflicted heavy casualties on the defenders.

Informed sources in Saigon said electronic monitors indicate that enemy truck traffic through the panhandle is "relatively light" because of the southwest monsoons. But U.S. B52 bombers, which operate above the rain clouds, kept up their raids on the Ho Chi Minh trail.

In South Vietnam, allied forces battled North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops Wednesday only 25 miles from Saigon, at four points around the A Shau valley and on two sides of the U Minh forest in the Mekong delta. Communists said 79 of the enemy and 22 South Vietnamese were killed, and 47 South Vietnamese and six Americans were wounded.

Turks Won't
Comprise on Kidnaping

ISTANBUL (AP) — The Turkish government pressed on today with its hunt for Israeli Consul-General Ephraim Elrom and his kidnapers despite their threat to kill him unless all political prisoners were released by tonight.

The deadline was 5 p.m. or 11 a.m. EDT.

The government made clear it would not comply with the demand from the terrorists of the People's Liberation Army. The nationwide roundup continued, and the total number jailed this week neared 1,000.

The government also approved a new law providing capital punishment for kidnapers and making the penalty retroactive, to apply to terrorists already held for previous kidnappings. The law is to be submitted to Parliament in a few days for ratification.

The army ordered newspapers not to print an appeal from Elrom's wife to the kidnapers, asking them to let him go as an act of "human compassion."

Four youths kidnaped Elrom when he came home to lunch Monday. A letter from him to his wife, mailed Tuesday in an Istanbul district, said: "I am OK. Do not worry."

The police said they had found the car used by the kidnapers in an Istanbul park. On Tuesday the police said they had arrested a student who was one of the kidnapers.

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Now is the time to come to the aid of your conversation with double talk.

This is the art of saying one thing while thinking another. Without the tension-relieving hypocrisy of double talk we'd all bite each other to death instead of trying to talk each other into rigor mortis.

For those who may need a brief brush-up course in double talk, here are a few examples of this vocal art form. The speaker's comment is in quotes, followed by what he is actually thinking.

"I will not stoop to disparage or depreciate my worthy opponent." — He has more mud to throw at me than I have to throw at him.

"That certainly was a soul-stirring sermon you preached on the evils of temptation, Dr. Hardrock." — I wish he'd quit kicking the hell out of sin and say something cheerful sometime.

To Test Atom
Bomb for Peace UseBy TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer
MERCURY, Nev. (AP) —

The Atomic Energy Commission is getting ready to test the first atomic bomb designed to be mass produced for peaceful use in the United States.

The bomb is designed to fracture sandstone formations found under several Western states and release natural gas trapped in the rock. The AEC says such devices could ultimately double the nation's dwindling natural gas reserve.

The device will be tested here at the Nevada Test Site in early June under the code name Minutiae. If all goes well, test and production shots could begin next year.

A. Dean Thornbrough, director of the AEC's office of peaceful nuclear explosives, said in an interview Wednesday that the Minutiae device, about 9 inches wide and 30 feet long, is designed to release very little radioactivity.

When atomic explosions are used in gas production the chief by-product of concern is tritium, a radioactive isotope of hydrogen. Combined with the methane in natural gas, tritium could be carried into the home, released when the gas is burned and absorbed by people.

These officials of I-30 construction companies are shown looking over the dirt preparation on the east bound lane back of the Ned Purdie Farm. This side of the road-bed is just now beginning to dry so that it can be worked.

The opposite lane is in much better shape and is now being topped with sand. If good weather conditions continue the base should be completed in a few weeks and the steel tie-ins started soon thereafter.

This segment being worked on is 5.4 miles of the incomplete 17 miles between Hope and Prescott.

Enemy Would
Swap POW's to End Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wives of three missing servicemen say the Pathet Lao have promised to identify U.S. prisoners of war they are holding if the Americans will halt bombing of Laos.

Three members of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia said in an interview Wednesday they were given the pledge in a meeting last weekend in Budapest.

The women also said a Chinese diplomat promised Peking will release prisoners it is holding if the United States recognizes the mainland government and withdraws recognition from Formosa.

Mrs. James B. White, who talked with a Pathet Lao official Sunday, said she was told prisoners would be identified immediately if the bombing is stopped, and POWs would be allowed to communicate with their families.

So far the Pathet Lao have not identified any of the Americans being held in Laos. The Pentagon lists 263 Americans missing in Laos but only three as confirmed captured.

Seven American airmen are listed as missing in China with two identified as prisoners. Only North Vietnam, which has released a list of 339, has identified any of the men it is holding.

Higher
Interest
Ruled Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's top banker has ruled out a return to tight money at home as the way to boost the value of the beleaguered dollar overseas.

Raising interest rates to cure the dollar's weakened international position "would not meet our lasting needs at home or abroad," Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns said Wednesday.

Burns' statement closely paralleled thinking of Nixon administration economists who say economic expansion in the United States should not be sacrificed because of the recent dollar crisis.

But Burns' assertion carries more weight because the independent central bank he heads is responsible for the flow of money and credit into the economy.

The recent dollar crisis triggered some speculation the board would tighten the money supply, thus boosting interest rates and eliminating one of the main reasons for the dollar's erosion in Europe.

In recent months, the board has followed a sharply expansive monetary policy, driving down record-high interest rates dramatically. Nixon's economic recovery plans depend heavily on the central bank's treatment of the money supply.

Burns said a tough anti-inflation policy stands at the top of his list of ways to help the dollar internationally.

"The overriding need is to restore price stability even as the present slack in our economy is taken up," he said. "I believe, with growing conviction, that a cogent incomes policy is a necessary part of the effort to restore price stability."

An "incomes policy" is economic jargon for all forms of direct government action to hold down wage and price increases. Nixon has edged closer to such a policy, but has not gone nearly as far as Burns wants. Burns, for instance, wants the President to establish a wage-and-price-review board but Nixon has rejected the idea.

Canada

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau have signed an agreement calling for the Soviet and Canadian governments to make urgent contact if necessary to maintain peace.

The protocol signed Wednesday also provides for regular consultation between the foreign minister of the two nations to discuss "important international problems of mutual interest."

Trudeau appeared for the signing ceremony at the government guest house outside Moscow and the official reception afterward dressed in a yellow striped shirt and brown suit with a red rose in his button hole. Kosygin wore a dark suit and conservative, small-patterned tie.

Tass reported that Trudeau, in a toast at the reception, said "the most earnest desire of the Canadian people is the desire to live in peace and accord with all peoples, particularly with the two great powers which are our neighbors—the Soviet Union and the United States."

Trudeau arrived in Moscow on Monday for an 11-day official visit and tour.

Trudeau met today with President Nikolai V. Podgorniy in the Kremlin to discuss further cooperation between their two governments. Earlier in the day, the prime minister toured the Kremlin's museums with his wife.

NEW YORK (AP) — A somewhat paradoxical, often contradictory and always revealing commentary continues to flow from those individuals and institutions thought to be authorities on profits, competition and the American way.

Earlier comments include Henry Ford II on the inability of the nation's automotive industry to stem the tide of imports, and Edwin Gott, U.S. Steel chairman, on the need for protective quotas on imported steel.

They also included rather grim views by leaders of the casualty insurance industry on the inability to make profits on certain business, by oil industry spokesmen on the inevitability of foreign imports increasing, by the railroad industry on the hopelessness of maintaining passenger service.

Add spokesmen for the aerospace industry, where one large company recently lost government assistance in funding a supersonic commercial transport, and where another now seeks a $250 million loan guarantee because otherwise the banks won't lend it any more money.

Lobsterman
Says Reds
Cut Up Nets

By HARRY A. EISENBERG
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — A U.S. lobster boat said a Soviet fishing trawler cut through its lobster gear early today, only hours after American and Russian officials met at sea to discuss alleged harassment of Yankee lobstermen.

Following the five-hour meeting Wednesday aboard a Russian ship, a State Department negotiator said the behavior of the 120-vessel Russian fleet in the next three weeks would determine whether the meeting was successful.

Today's charge was made by the Westport-based Pat-San-Marie, which last weekend also reported Soviet bloc boats tore loose her lobster gear.

The Pat-San-Marie told the Coast Guard 16 foreign trawlers crisscrossed through her lobster gear through the night about 20 miles south of Nantucket Lightship.

The area is about 30 miles from the site of Wednesday's Russian-American parley.

The Coast Guard ordered the cutter Active to investigate the Pat-San-Marie report. The Active had been on patrol nearby. Following Wednesday's meeting, State Department negotiator Donald L. McKernan termed the talks "reasonably successful."

McKernan headed an 11-member U.S. group that conferred Wednesday with the commander of the Soviets' Atlantic fishing fleet.

The alleged harassment has involved the Soviets sailing through the Americans' lobster fishing area, their trawls snapping the Americans' lines and damaging their equipment.

McKernan said the commander of the Soviet fleet, Yuri I. Radtseve, agreed to reconstruct his fleet to be more careful of fixed lobster gear.

U.S., Russia
Agree to Take Up Arms Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today that the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to work this year toward an agreement on limiting antiballistic missiles and on limiting offensive nuclear weapons.

In a brief statement on live television and radio, Nixon declared "this agreement is a major step in breaking the stalemate on nuclear arms talks" begun with the Soviets in 1969.

Nixon's short announcement—timed with a similar one to be issued by Moscow—gave no details on what breakthrough he anticipated in the U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) which got underway in Finland in the fall of 1969.

The major U.S.-Soviet disarmament negotiations have been stalemated over a Soviet proposal to go ahead with a deal just to curb ABMs (antiballistic missiles). The United States has been contending that a SALT agreement should include both offensive weapons such as intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) and ABMs in the same package.

Nixon's announcement indicated there may have been some compromise by each side in order to make progress toward an historic agreement to limit the arms race between the two superpowers. But his national broadcast did not spell this out.

Further details were expected to be made public by the White House later.

The current SALT talks are in Vienna.

Nixon has been meeting here this week with Ambassador Gerard Smith, head of the U.S. delegation to the SALT talks, and delegation members. The subject of their talks has been held in strict secrecy.

Nixon said the agreement had been reached at the highest level. He did not specify with whom. The Soviet Communist Party leader is Leonid Brezhnev. The prime minister is Alexei N. Kosygin.

Sadat Firm on Terms of Opening Suez

BEIRUT (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat today restated his conditions for reopening the Suez Canal and made no modifications in them.

In a speech to the National Assembly broadcast by Cairo Radio, Sadat said Egyptian troops must cross to the canal's east bank and Israeli withdrawal from the canal must be the first stage of a complete withdrawal "with a defined timetable" from all territory occupied in the 1967 war.

Sadat added that Egypt refuses any open-ended cease-fire as long as "one single Israeli soldier exists on our land."

Sadat said these conditions were Egypt's reply to negotiations initiated by Secretary of State William P. Rogers for an interim agreement to reopen the canal. He said Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad would present this position to Donald C. Bergus, the U.S. representative in Cairo, after the speech.

Sadat called on the United States to "squeeze" Israel to accept these conditions.

"I told Rogers I won't settle for arguments that the U.S. cannot exert pressure on Israel," he said. "I told him to tell Mr. Nixon that I don't demand American pressure on Israel but I want America to squeeze Israel in the interests of peace in the Middle East," said Sadat.

The president said Egypt's policy is based on two premises: "We shall not abandon one single inch of our land, and we refuse any compromise on the rights of the Palestinian people."

He charged that the Israelis tried to twist Egypt's offer last February on reopening the canal by claiming it was a separate solution. "This is not true," he declared. But he said Egypt still stands by the February offer if "only to get a peaceful solution in the Middle East moving."

It was Sadat's first appearance before the assembly since the 1967 defeat "has made the whole world, including the United States, feel the need for a faster momentum for a peaceful settlement."

Praising the Soviet Union for its military aid, Sadat said Egypt's military recovery since the 1967 defeat "has made the whole world, including the United States, feel the need for a faster momentum for a peaceful settlement."

Bumpers Endorses 2nd School

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A proposal to build a river industry training school on the Arkansas River at Russellville was endorsed Wednesday by Gov. Dale Bumpers.

The governor said he decided to favor the project after concluding that the school would not conflict with the program of the National River Academy at Helena.

SST Dead, This Time for Good

By LAWRENCE L. KNUSTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The supersonic transport, burdened by controversy and a billion-dollar price increase, has been killed again by the Senate, this time, it appears, for good.

Fifty eight senators agreed late Wednesday night the American SST bore a price tag in economic and environmental terms the nation could not afford.

Only 37 senators supported federally subsidized production of the pencil-thin, faster-than-sound craft needed, its backers claimed, to maintain American dominance in the world's aviation markets.

Even before it formal defeat the White House conceded the demise of the program promoted by every President since John F. Kennedy initiated it nearly a decade ago at a cost that has reached $800 million.

Having killed the SST, the Senate agreed to pay for the funeral.

It voted 92 to 3 to appropriate $155.8 million in termination money split three ways: $85.3 million to SST contractors, $58.5 million to the airlines which had deposited that much in good-faith cash in 1967, and $12 million to shut down the SST office of the Department of Transportation.

Both the Democratic and Republican leaders of the House said after the Senate vote they saw little chance their chamber would revive the SST.

Thus, the attempt to have the government underwrite the most controversial plane in the annals of aviation appears to have died.

It was an end prefigured by many death rattles.

Last year the Senate voted to end the federal development role only to have the House insist on continuing the project, a view upheld in a conference committee. Then last March both the House and the Senate decided against the plane, leading to the conclusion the SST was doomed.

It was a surprise, therefore, when the House voted last week to restore the supersonic transport by turning $85 million in SST termination money included in a supplemental appropriation into a fund to restart the project.

The Senate turned down this attempt Wednesday by accepting an amendment by long-time SST critic Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to delete the restart money.

The White House made it clear Wednesday the SST comeback had been doomed by the frank dollars-and-cents talk of an unlikely villain: William Allen, chairman of the board of the Boeing Co., the chief SST contractor.

In two days of negotiations, a White House spokesman said, Boeing would not back away from Allen's claim that the costs of restarting SST development would range to a billion dollars, and that the government must commit itself in any new contracts to the costs of actual commercial production, not just the prototype development.

conflicted with a statement issued by Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark. Alexander said the Russellville school would duplicate the program at the Helena school. Alexander also said the Russellville proposal embarrassed the state in the eyes of the waterways industry.

The program at Russellville is to be financed with a $590,000 grant from the U.S. Labor Department's Manpower Training Division.

Alexander said that attempts to establish the Russellville school were illegal if Manpower Training Act funds were being considered for its use.

Alexander said that officials in the Manpower Training Division said that use of MTA funds where adequate facilities already exist is illegal.

He said waterway industry officials had questioned the location of another school at Russellville.

"They have asked me: 'Can't you people get together in Arkansas on where you want this facility?'"

Bumpers said that 65 per cent of the trainees at the Russellville school were to be disadvantaged persons and that all of them had to be unemployed.

Senate Defies Mansfield on Troop Cut

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was in the chair, but the administration never came close to needing him as the Senate refused its majority leader's demand for a cutback in U.S. forces in Western Europe.

The votes were all one way, President Nixon's way, in the Wednesday night decisions on the troop-cut issue pressed by Sen. Mike Mansfield.

The tie that would have permitted an Agnew vote never was closer than 25 votes as the Senate enforced the President's no-compromise stand on the troop issue.

Nixon, refusing to budge, presided over an eight-day campaign that recruited former Democratic Presidents Lyndon B. Johnson and Harry S. Truman as well as many past diplomatic and military figures.

So strong was the White House stance that it rejected the advice of Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott to work out a "just-in-case" compromise.

As it turned out, the administration didn't need one.

By the time Mansfield's measure to compel the withdrawal of half the 300,000 troops by Dec. 31 was came to a vote there was no doubt about the outcome and the proposal was defeated 61 to 36.

But an earlier, substitute proposal by Sen. Charles McMathias, R-Md., was the one that most concerned administration strategists seeking to avoid any Senate measure on the troop issue.

Mathias would have urged troop withdrawal negotiations and required periodic presidential reports to Congress on such talks.

Republican strategists had feared an alliance of Mathias and Mansfield supporters that might have pushed the negotiate-and-report measure to a majority.

"We figured a lot of people around here wanted to vote for something, and that might be it," one Republican strategist said.

They need not have worried. Mansfield and his allies were no more interested in such a compromise than the administration. In effect, they opted for nothing rather than for the Mathias plan and it was beaten 73 to 24.

Mansfield said afterwards the suggestion of Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist Party chairman, for East-West negotiations on troop reductions, likely was a significant factor in the outcome of the vote.

Then he turned back into the Senate chamber and, at the door, met Kenneth E. Belieu, one of the administration's chief lobbyists on the troop issue.

They shook hands. "Well Ken, you did a good job, didn't you," Mansfield said. "That's the way a democracy operates."

Plane Piece Punctures H.S. House

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Tom C. Manning, a federal Aviation Administration inspector, says that a three-pound cast iron object that crashed through the roof of a home here Wednesday appeared to be an airplane antenna weight.

The roof and the floor of the home were damaged but no one was injured.

The object fell through the roof of the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Walter Yeldell. Mrs. Yeldell said she was talking on the telephone when she heard a "loud blasting noise" in a bedroom of the home.

She said she could not recall hearing a plane fly over.

May Revive British and French Treaty

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — President Georges Pompidou and Prime Minister Edward Heath met today in an attempt to revive the old British-French alliance so France won't again, veto Britain's application to join the European Common Market.

The success of their talks depended largely on the ability of the two leaders to align their policies toward the United States and West Germany. To win Pompidou's backing, Heath had to convince his host that Britain's cooperation with the Americans and Germans would never be at France's expense.

In nearly seven hours of discussions today and Friday, the two men were to range over the affairs of Western Europe and its role in the world, the progress of the Brussels negotiations to enlarge the six-nation Common Market, and the long-term political, monetary and economic implications of enlarging the European Economic Community.

Pompidou and Heath grouped their talks around three main themes:

—The sort of Europe they want: This takes in the role of a united Western Europe should seek to play in the Middle East, Asia, Africa, toward the Communist powers and so on. It also includes the defense system Europeans should work toward, bearing in mind mounting pressures for reduction in American forces abroad.

—The state of the Brussels negotiations on British admission to the Common Market: This means examining the remaining disagreements. A compromise is expected over the money Britain must contribute to the economic community's coffers. It also means arguing about Britain's promise to safeguard the economy of New Zealand, which would go broke if it were to lose its special access to the British market for its meat and dairy products.

—The political, cultural and economic effects of enlarging the Common Market. Here Pompidou seemed certain to press Heath for a promise to phase out the role of the pound sterling as a reserve currency. He was likely to want guarantees that Britain will not bring the problems of the pound into the community. Heath was reported ready to discuss any precise proposal Pompidou puts up, for instance, merging sterling's international role into that of some sort of successor currency collectively backed by the Common Market states.

Ogden Nash, 68, Master of Witty Poetry, Dies in John Hopkins

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ogden Nash was very serious when he first tried his hand at poetry. "I wrote sonnets. About beauty and truth, eternity, poignant pain," he once recalled.

He threw the first nonsense lines of poetry he wrote into a wastebasket, but later retrieved them and began the career that long before his death Wednesday had established him as America's master of doggerel.

Nash, 68, died at Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he had been under treatment for kidney failure and a May 9 stroke. Asked once why he had changed from heavy to light verse, Nash said, "I thought I'd better laugh at myself before anyone else laughed at me."

When millions laughed with him, Nash deflected praise with the comment that his verses were "just thoughts that must occur to many thousands of men."

Perhaps, but few could express them with Ogden Nash's flippant, meter-gone-crazy style that cut humorously to the heart of the matter.

As a young man, Nash decided he did not have a future as a serious poet and turned to writing advertising copy for Doubleday & Co. His mind wandered one day and he scribbled some nonsense lines of verse.

He threw them away, but later recovered them and sent one to the New Yorker magazine. The editors liked his style and

Mars Probe Launched by Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — An unmanned Soviet space vehicle headed toward Mars today for another attempt to gather information about the only other planet scientists think might harbor some form of life.

Tass announced that the "automatic interplanetary station" Mars 2 was launched Wednesday night and was expected to complete its 300-million-mile journey by November. The news agency did not say whether the five-ton craft would attempt a soft landing.

Mars 2 will carry out research "about the planet Mars and the space surrounding it," the official news agency said, and will study "the characteristics of solar plasma, cosmic rays and the radiation situation."

Tass said all instruments were functioning normally and incoming information was being processed.

asked for more. Soon he was making more money writing verse than advertising copy, and later he became the managing editor of the New Yorker. Beginning with the book "Hard Lines" in 1931, he composed more than a dozen volumes of verse. He wrote the lyrics for the 1940s stage and film hit "One Touch of Venus," but other stage ventures he helped compose were not successful.

Nash was born Aug. 19, 1902, in Rye, N.Y., and moved to Baltimore three years after he married a Baltimore girl, Frances Rider Leonard, in 1931. They had two daughters, who were with their mother at Nash's bedside when he died.

Nixon Beats Down Europe Troop Cut

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has won his hard-fought battle against Senate proposals to cut U.S. troop strength in Europe. But his authority in foreign relations faces further challenges in Congress.

By a vote of 61 to 36, the Senate Wednesday night rejected a proposal by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield requiring a 50-per-cent cut in the 300,000-man U.S. European force by the end of 1971.

The Senate had rejected earlier a series of less-sweeping proposals on one-sided votes which masked strong feeling that something should be done about the large U.S. force remaining in Europe 20 years after it was sent there.

Mansfield told the Senate his fight had achieved its minimum goal of increasing awareness of the problem.

But he expressed regret "there has been no hint of an understanding from downtown (the White House) or overseas." He vowed to try again.

Defeat of the Mansfield amendment ended one of the major side issues in Senate debate on House-passed legislation to extend it beyond its June 30 expiration date.

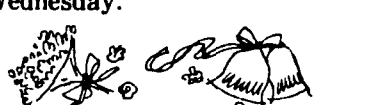

After draft-related issues are settled, probably next week, an attempt will be made to use the bill in a new effort to cut off funds for U.S. operations in Indochina beyond Dec. 31.

Waiting in the wings is a far broader challenge to presidential authority: three more bills to limit a chief executive's power to commit American forces overseas without a congressional declaration of war.

From the time nine days ago when Mansfield announced he would seek an amendment requiring troop reductions in Europe, the administration had taken a strenuous position against any compromise.

The White House recruited a potent coalition of elder statesmen and generals long prominent in Atlantic alliance activities and former Democratic Presidents Harry S. Truman and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Though a majority of senators had backed past Mansfield efforts carrying no legal impact, the administration's argument against tying presidential hands won heavy backing, especially among Republican members. Only five GOP senators voted with Mansfield Wednesday.

Wedding Vows Are Repeated

MRS. RONALD T. HOOKER

In a candlelight setting at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 15 in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church Miss Mary Lou Huckabee and Ronald Terry Hooker exchanged marriage vows. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Huckabee, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Dale Hooker of Prescott.

The Rev. Connie Robbins, pastor of the Spring Hill United Methodist Church, read the double-ring ceremony before an alter decorated with white stocks, Majestic daisies, white pom mums and spiral candelabra. Candles, greenery and white satin bows marked the pews.

Miss Melinda Hooker of Prescott, sister of the groom, and Don Cumbie of Benton, cousin of the bride, lighted the candles. Mrs. Arthur Strech, organist, played a program of wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Susan Turner, who sang "Thine Alone" and "Because." They concluded the ceremony with a prayer hymn as the couple knelt.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown her mother had fashioned of dotted Swiss in a princess style outlined with ruffled lace. The wedding ring neckline and three-quarter cuffs on bishop sleeves were lace trimmed, and the pearl-trimmed train of Venice lace was attached to the shoulders. A petaled headpiece trimmed in seed pearls held a short veil of illusion. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white daisies and gypsophila.

Mrs. Jake Honea of Prescott was her sister's matron of honor. Her formal-length gown of blue dotted Swiss was of peasant style with an embroidered chain of white daisies at the waistline. Clusters of yellow daisies were worn in her hair, and she carried a colonial bouquet of the same flowers. A daisy choker edged in ruffled lace completed her attire. Dressed in the same manner were the bridesmaids, Miss Ann Purvis and Miss Patricia Stone. The flower girl, Miss Sherry Embry, also wore blue dotted Swiss.

Jerry Hooker of Prescott served his brother as best man. Ushers were Jake Honea of Prescott, brother-in-law of the bride, Johnny Fricks of Ft. Smith, cousin of the bride, Pete

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Huckabee wore pink knit with matching accessories, and Mrs. Hooker, mother of the bridegroom, wore lavender knit with matching accessories. Each had a cymbidium orchid corsage.

After the wedding, a reception was held at the Heritage House. Several of the bride's aunts were in the house party—Mrs. F.J. Bruce greeted the guests at the door; Mrs. Harold Cumbie of Benton served the cake; Mrs. Charles Fricks of Ft. Smith poured the punch; and Mrs. Howard Cumbie of Searcy assisted in serving.

Miss Janice Kay Cumbie of Benton, cousin of the bride, presided at the bride's book. Dispensing hospitality were Mrs. Paula Kay Childs of Arkadelphia and Mrs. Pete DeWoody of Prescott. Becky and Johnny Bruce gave out the rice bags.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Tennessee Ernie Ford, who looks like a city slicker and talks country-style, came along Wednesday night with an hour of variety mixing urban sophistication and rural corn.

The NBC special, called "Sing America Beautiful," was a sort of glorified sing-along as the studio audience joined in on some familiar tunes. Just about all the music was as familiar as the opening production number, "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee."

The comedy-jokes by Ernie and guest star Danny Thomas—was on the level of "Hee Haw." Then Diahann Carroll came along and stole the show with her version of "Danny Boy" and "76 Trombones."

Tom and Dick Smothers had a short turn with a little singing and a lot of their usual wrangling.

The show was pretty much of a hodge-podge, and there were uncomfortable moments when things were pretty saccharine, but its intentions were good.

The Public Broadcasting stations had a study of the families of three young people who died violently last year. "Part of the Family" opened showing the family life of the Italian-American family of a 20-year-old Marine who died in Vietnam. Then there was the wife, infant and sister of 22-year-old Philip Gibbs, a black man shot during disturbances at Jackson State University in Mississippi. And then there were the parents of Allison Krause, who died in the Kent State troubles.

The cameras went into the homes of the bereaved families, and also to the graveyards. The parents and other relatives spoke sadly of the loss of the loved ones. It somehow missed being the powerful preachment that, obviously, it was intended to be. Occasionally it seemed to have invaded—however gently and sympathetically—private areas in the lives of the sorrowing survivors.

The word out of Hollywood is that guest stars will be paid about the same next season as they were this past one.

Top drawer talent on the top variety hours will receive up to $7,500.

Widest range for pay is in the two-hour made-for-TV film features. Some important performers have received as high as $75,000, although the normal range for such series is about $20,000 to $25,000.

Braves Shell Montreal by 10 to 4

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mike Lum's new bats and Cleve Boyer's old legs have had a brisk workout, but it's nothing compared to the exercise Chief Noc-A-Homa's been getting this week.

Lum and Boyer each drove in three runs with a pair of homers Wednesday night, sending Atlanta mascot Noc-A-Homa into orbit four times as the fence-busting Braves shelled the Montreal Expos 10-4.

Lum, filling in for sore-legged slugger Hank Aaron, belted his second and third homers of the season while breaking in a new set of bats delivered just before the game.

Boyer crashed his second homer of the night—and sixth in his last eight starts—after chugging around the bases earlier in the game for an apparent inside-the-park shot which, in reality, had cleared the fence and caromed off Noc-A-Homa's teepee back onto the field.

The Chief, who celebrates each Atlanta homer with a war dance, has been gyrating at a marathon pace in the Braves, last three games. They have walloped 11 homers—to seven for the opposition—while winning all three to move within 7½ games of pace-setting San Francisco in the National League West.

There have been 59 homers hit in 21 games at Atlanta this season—30 by the home team.

The Chicago Cubs thumped the Giants 9-5 in an afternoon game behind the two-homer, six-RBI slugging of Billy Williams.

In other NL night games, Pittsburgh whipped Cincinnati 6-1; Philadelphia trimmed the New York Mets 4-1; Los Angeles nipped St. Louis 6-5 and San Diego edged Houston 2-1 in 10 innings.

In the American League, Boston thrashed the New York Yankees 7-2; Baltimore topped Washington 4-1; Detroit bombed Cleveland 12-1; Oakland beat Milwaukee 3-0; Kansas City took the Chicago White Sox 2-0 and Minnesota rocked California 12-6.

Boyer, who has homered in each of the last three games, capped a five-run Atlanta flurry in the third inning with his two-run inside-the-park wallop that wasn't.

The ball ticked off the glove of left fielder Jim Gosger and ricocheted off Noc-A-Homa's wigwag beyond the fence. Neither Boyer nor the umpires were aware it had gone out.

Confirmation that the ball had cleared the barrier came from Noc-A-Homa between innings, and what would have been the first inside-the-park homer of Boyer's 16-year major league career went by the boards.

Boyer led off the sixth with a drive far over the left field fence and Lum followed with another homer to right. Lum completed the long-ball barrage with a two-run blast in the eighth.

At Chicago, Williams smacked a three-run homer in the first inning a bases-empty homer in the third and a two-run triple in the sixth, powering the Cubs to their seventh victory in eight games.

J.C. Martin added a two-run homer for the Cubs and Ferguson Jenkins survived three San Francisco homers on the way to his seventh consecutive victory and eighth in 10 decisions.

Roberto Clemente drilled four hits, including the first inside-the-park homer ever hit in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium, as the Pirates shot into first place in the East Division.

In addition to his third homer of the season, Clemente singled and scored in the first inning, tripled home one run and scored another in the fifth and laced a run-scoring single in the ninth.

Philadelphia's Terry Harmon cracked a tie-breaking three-run double in the seventh inning, handing the Mets their fourth straight setback and

McLarens Are More Feared Than Turbine

—at 'Indy'

By DALE BURGESS
Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — "The McLarens have a bigger advantage than Parnelli Jones' STP turbine had in 1967," said Bobby Unser, who will start beside the Mark 16 McLarens of Peter Revson and Mark Donohue in the front row of the 55th 500-mile race May 29 at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Vince Granatelli, who was Jones' chief mechanic in the 1967 race, nodded agreement. "Look at the qualifying figures," said Unser, the 1968 Indy winner. Revson took the pole last Saturday at 178.696 miles an hour beating the 177.087 of Donohue, who had done over 180 in practice.

Bobby Unser did 175.816 in a Gurney Eagle with a turbo-charged Offenhauser engine similar to that used by the McLarens.

In 1967, Jones and his Pratt & Whitney turbine engine were only the sixth-fastest qualifier at 166.075. Mario Andretti won the pole at 168.982 with a conventional engine but lost a wheel in the race.

Jones ran away from the field in the first lap and led A. J. Foyt Jr. by two miles when a bearing failed with 10 miles to go.

Vince Granatelli, whose brother Andy heads the STP gasoline and oil additive company, is still doing a slow burn over complaints that Jones was "sandbagging" in practice and qualifications for the 1967 race.

Sandbagging is deliberately turning one corner at relatively slow speed on each lap, varying the corner, in order to give deceptively low average speeds to observers. An easier, more obvious way is to hold down straightaway speeds.

"No driver is going to sandbag," Granatelli insisted, "getting ready for this race." Bobby Unser, chatting with the STP master mechanic during a Thursday shower, agreed.

Dolphins Sign More Veterans

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Miami Dolphins of the National Football League have signed seven more veterans, including Larry Seiple, a Kentucky graduate heading into his fifth season.

Seiple is listed as the Dolphins' punter, but also has played tight end, wide receiver and defensive backs.

Others signing with the American Football Conference team were Hubert Ginn, second year running back; Wayne Moore, second year offensive tackle; Dick Palmer, second year linebacker; Norm McBride, third year defense end; Randy Edmunds, third year linebacker, and Barry Pryor, third year running back.

double and Al Kaline unloaded his first two homers of the year as Detroit scored in every inning but the seventh and steam-rolled Cleveland.

McAuliffe doubled home two runs in the fourth, then lashed a two-run homer in the eighth during a five-run spurge. Mickey Lolich breezed by his sixth victory, allowing six hits in the seven innings he worked, and built his lifetime mark to 22-8 over the Indians.

Unbeaten Sonny Siebert nailed down his seventh victory as Boston beat New York. Reggie Smith's two-run homer in the seventh snapped a 2-2 tie and the Red Sox scored three more times in the eighth. Siebert struggled most of the way, giving up eight hits, walking four and hitting one batter before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. The Yankees scored in the fourth on a bases-loaded walk to pitcher Steve Kline and in the seventh on Roy White's sacrifice fly which temporarily tied the game.

The Baltimore Orioles scored two runs without a hit in the first inning and spoiled a sparkling pitching debut by 21-year-old Mike Thompson. The Senators' rookie, called up from the minors only last Sunday, allowed just one single to pitcher Jim Palmer in seven innings of work. Palmer checked Washington on five hits to notch his sixth victory.

Pitcher Blue Makes Other Clubs See Red

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

With Fort Knox gold, Kelly green and wedding gown white, you'd hardly expect the Oakland A's to fit any more colors into their scheme.

They have, though—Blue. Not just plain Blue. But Vida Blue. "You have to make up new words to describe him," Oakland Manager Dick Williams says of his super southpaw with the blurring-white fastball.

Blue continues to color blind American League batters and, Wednesday night, won his ninth straight game with a three-hit, 3-0 whitewashing of Milwaukee. Not incidentally, it was the fifth shutout for the dazzling 22-year-old.

"I'm learning as I go along," says Blue, who must be one of the fastest learners in baseball. The only time he lost was on Opening Day to the Washington Senators.

In the other American League games, Kansas City beat Chicago 2-0; Detroit humbled Cleveland 12-1; Boston whipped New York 7-2; Baltimore topped Washington 4-1 and Minnesota creamed California 12-6.

National League: Chicago 9, San Francisco 5; Los Angeles 6, St. Louis 5; San Diego 2, Houston 1 in 10 innings; Pittsburgh 6, Cincinnati 1; Atlanta 10, Montreal 4 and Philadelphia 4, New York 1.

Blue, who pitched a one-hitter and a no-hitter last season after being called up to the big time from the minors in September, says he still is not completely confident on the mound. He points to catcher Dave Duncan as an ego-builder.

Blue had control problems in the early innings, walking a batter in each of the first three frames, but got better as it got later and wound up pitching one of his strongest games.

After the rocky beginning, Blue at one point retired 10 batters in a row before Danny Walton's single opened the seventh. The only other Milwaukee hits were singles by Roberto Pena in the third and Ron Theobald in the eighth.

What did Williams have to say about his brightest star on a pitching-rich staff?

"Well, he's not much of a hitter," Williams quipped.

Mike Hedlund unfurled a six-hitter with last-out relief help from Ted Abernathy as Kansas City shaded Chicago on Paul Schaal's run-scoring triple in the sixth inning and Amos Otis' home run in the seventh.

Chicago's Bart Johnson handcuffed Kansas City on one hit until the sixth when Schaal's triple chased home Ed Kirkpatrick, who had walked. Otis cracked his seventh homer off reliever Joel Hoerner to give Hedlund an insurance run. Abernathy retired pinch-hitter Walt Williams for the final out after singles by Ed Herrmann and Mike Andrews.

Dick McAuliffe knocked in four runs with a home run and dropping them one game behind the Pirates in the division. Rookie Bobby Valentine started a tying two-run rally with a seventh inning single and broke the deadlock with a run-scoring single off Bob Gibson in the eighth, carrying the Dodgers past St. Louis.

Nate Colbert doubled in the 10th and raced home on Ollie Brown's single off the glove of Houston second baseman Denis Menke, giving the Padres their first victory in six games.

Cowboys Trade Rentzel, Get Alworth

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have traded off a public relations problem, grabbed a needed clutch-receiving tight end and bagged two flashy wide receivers to add leverage to their Bob Hayes negotiations in a lightning series of National Football League swaps involving seven players.

Wide receiver Lance Rentzel, on probation for five years for indecent exposure, was traded Wednesday to the Los Angeles Rams for tight end Billy Truax and wide receiver Wendell Tucker.

Lance Alworth of San Diego, the seventh-ranking receiver in professional football, was sent to the Cowboys in exchange for tight end Pettis Norman, offensive tackle Tony Liscio and defensive tackle Ron East.

The Cowboys, who only recently obtained speedy flanker Gloster Richardson from the Kansas City Chiefs, have been searching for more receiving help after Hayes, who played out his option in 1970, decided to shop around for a possible new coach.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said of the Alworth trade: "Alworth's record speaks for itself. You look at all the receivers in the 1960s and you have to have to rate Alworth the top receiver for that period. We feel he has several outstanding years still in him. We were very reluctant to trade men the caliber of Norman, Liscio and East, but when the chance for Alworth came we couldn't pass it up."

Rentzel's trade came because Cowboys' officials felt it would be best for him and the team. Rentzel pleaded guilty to a charge of exposing himself to a 10-year-old girl last November and didn't play in the Cowboy's stretch drive to the Super Bowl.

Rentzel, 27, husband of motion picture and television personality Joey Heatherton, said: "When you think about it, I think this is the best thing for all parties, I'm grateful they traded me to an area where I have so many friends and to such a good team and a fine organization."

Rentzel caught 185 passes for 3,531 yards and 31 touchdowns in his six NFL seasons.

Alworth's statistics are awesome. In nine seasons, he has caught 493 passes for 9,584 yards and 81 touchdowns.

Canonero Leaves for Belmont and a Shot at the Triple Crown

BALTIMORE (AP) — Canonero II, who has a chance on June 5 to become racing's first Triple Crown winner since 1948, was to leave Pimlico today for Belmont Park.

The 3-year-old Kentucky-bred, owned by Venezuelans and raced mostly in that South American nation, has won the Kentucky Derby and Pre-akness.

A victory in the Belmont would make Canonero II the ninth thoroughbred in history to win the Triple Crown, and the first since Citation 23 years ago.

The colt was paraded Wednesday before the fans at Pimlico, where he won the Pre-akness in record time last week. Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland, who saw the race, revisited the track Wednesday to make six Venezuelans honorary citizens of the state.

Those honored included Pedro Baptista, owner of the colt; Edgar Caibett, Baptista's son-in-law and program owner; trainer Juan Arias; jockey Gustavo Avila; Victor Scialom, an accountant, and Dr. Jose Almerana, a friend and business associate of the owners.

Deming earned $216.66 after he tied for low-pro honors and $125 when his team tied for third — a total of $341.66. Deming's three-under par 69 tied him with Bob Wynn and Jim Grant.

Five other players broke par. Ken Fulton, Ron Reif, Jerry Abbott and Howell Fraser shot 70s and won $135 each. Bobby Cole was alone at 71 and earned $100.

Rich Bassett, Bob Erickson, Jim Ferriell and Claude Harmon Jr. equaled par and won $73.75 each. Deming's team had a net 62, two shots behind the teams of Ben Kern and Jerry Barrier. Kern and Barrier won $187.50 each.

Deming had five birdies, but bogied No. 7, when he pushed his tee shot and No. 14, when he three-putted. Wynn and Grant were more consistent. Both had 15 pars and three birdies.

Ewell Lee, an eight-handicapper and Jimmy Manning, an 11-handicapper were the heroes of the pro-am. Lee's handicap turned two birdies into eagles and four pars into birdies. He also added a natural birdie on No. 16 to aid Barrier's team.

Manning's performance on Kern's team was similar. He had two net eagles and four net birdies on the front nine alone. He also made another net birdie with a par on No. 11.

Amarillo in 5-4 Win Over Travs

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Gary Matthews' long fly to center with the bases loaded in the ninth inning gave the Amarillo Giants a 5-4 victory over the Arkansas Travelers Wednesday night.

The Travelers now own only a half-game edge over second-place Memphis in the Central Division of the Dixie Association.

Arkansas had fought back from a 4-0 deficit to tie the game in the eighth inning. Matthews, a husky outfielder, lashed a long drive over centerfielder Jorge Roque's head, easily allowing Steve Kokor to score the deciding run.

The two teams meet again tonight in Amarillo. In other Dixie action Wednesday, Dallas-Fort Worth lost 4-3 to Memphis, Asheville fell 9-8 to Jacksonville, Savannah dropped Columbus 3-1, Shreveport edged Albuquerque 3-2 and Birmingham defeated San Antonio 8-6.

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — Ten quarter-horse entrants will share a $135,415 purse, largest ever offered in Northern California racing, when the Golden State Derby is run at Bay Meadows Saturday night.

No Football Strike, Says Players' Rep.

By LARRY PALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Another National Football League players strike?

Despite an unfair labor practices suit filed against the owners there won't be a strike this July, according to Ed Flanagan, player-representative of the Detroit Lions.

"We don't anticipate a strike at all. It's the furthest thing from our minds," the All-Pro center said from his suburban Detroit home. "None of the player reps has even mentioned a strike."

Although the contract dispute last summer between the NFL Players Association and the Owners Negotiating Committee was settled in time for the exhibition season, it seems it was not really settled at all.

Speedway Invades Poconos

By RICHARD S. BENYO

POCONO, Pa. — (NEA) — Bill Walker is a seemingly displaced southerner, slow-talking with a penchant for modern garb that mildly clashes with his middle age. Bill Walker moves with the times—for a purpose: he doesn't mind being called an opportunist.

He swooped down into the Pocono Mountains here in 1961, like a big eagle ready to stake its claim to a territory; he built a modest motel complex at the junction of Pennsylvania Routes 903 and 115 and managed a beachhead for the forces of the coming assault of land developers, resort hotels and big-city weekenders.

His success mirrors the success of the developments in the Pocono Mountains vacationland. His favorite investment, paradoxically to the traditionally slow tempo of Pocono life, is a super-speedway.

Pocono International Raceway is a multi-million-dollar, five-track racing complex that is plopped down in 1,025 acres of prime Pocono Mountain real estate that, prior to the recreation and leisure boom, had been a spinach field.

"Sure I'm investin' in Pocono Raceway," Bill Walker will tell you. "It's one of the biggest things to hit the Pocono Mountains since the Indians gave it up." Walker's optimism for the outcome of the Raceway venture is not a shot in the dark; it is a piece of good planning, where he gets a double portion of the pie.

For any of the variety of motorcycle championships, Sports Car Club of America club races, or modified sportsman championships that Pocono International has had to date, Bill Walker's Motor Lodge has been sold out.

Bill Walker's ace in the hole is going to begin bringing dividends this summer. Pocono International is hosting the Schaefer 500, the first United States Auto

Club 500-mile race in the East, billed as the "Indy of the East."

"It's gonna be the biggest thing that's hit this area," says Elwood Diehl, a service station owner in Jim Thorpe, a county seat community located a half-hour from the Raceway. The predicted 150,000 race fans are expected to bring a good deal of their business in Elwood's direction.

The 2.5-mile tri-oval configuration at Pocono International, with three turns using banking of six, eight and 14 degrees, has had thousand-dollar bills tossed into it like pennies in a wishing well. The millions of dollars have added up to one of the most "planned" race tracks America is ever likely to see.

Dr. Joseph R. Mattioli, a 46-year-old Philadelphia dentist who also happens to be a millionaire and a major investor in Pocono International and also the president of the board, has had extensive real estate interests in the Pocono Mountains for years. "I wouldn't bet a nickel on a horse or a game," Mattioli says, "but I will gamble on what I think might happen in a land-development situation."

Mattioli did his homework before dropping a nickel into the Pocono track. Auto racing is now second only to horse racing as America's favorite spectator sport. Some 42.5 million American sports fans attended races last year; it is estimated by Mattioli that by America's 200th birthday party the July 4th weekend at Pocono International Raceway will be seating better than a half-million fans for the 500-mile classic.

But the concern at the track is not 1976; it is the inaugural 500-miler in 1971 that, being sponsored by the Schaefer Brewing Co. (which is spending close to a half-million dollars in promotion alone), will be drawing as many fans as two Super Bowls.

Oriole Fans Stay Away in Flocks

By JOHN SCHULIAN

BALTIMORE — (NEA) — It isn't that the denizens of Nickel Town, as Baltimore is disaffectionately known, don't appreciate the world champion Orioles. It's just that they have never, ever spent much time or money watching the Orioles perform in person.

Bill Doyle, for instance, is a native of the city who will tell anyone willing to listen that Boog Powell always hits like Jane Powell in April and that Mike Cuellar doesn't pitch well until summer starts to sizzle and countless other bits of lore only an aficionado can recall.

Although he lives but three blocks from Memorial Stadium, where the Orioles have resided since 1954, Doyle estimates that he hasn't been over to see them play "for at least five years," even though the team has won three pennants during that span.

Instead, he prefers to read about the Orioles in the newspapers and to watch the more than 40 Orioles games that are televised annually.

And, as a result, he is just the sort of fellow Frank Cashen, the Orioles' executive vice-president, is talking about when he says, "Baltimore has perhaps the greatest passive baseball fans in the country."

It is an image that likely will remain unaltered in 1971.

When the Orioles won their first world championship in 1966, season ticket sales boomed the following year. Last autumn's dismantling of the Big Red Machine, however, produced "a negligible increase" in sales, says Cashen, who blames it on the economic squeeze.

In the first month of the current season, home crowds in Baltimore averaged about 13,900, roughly 200 under the pace the Orioles needed in 1970 to stumble into sixth place in the American League attendance derby with a season total of 1-057,069.

Dating back to their 1969 debacle with the New York Mets, the Orioles have failed to fill their park for five consecutive Series games. For all the sleep he admits to having lost over that dubious achievement, Cashen has yet to come up with an explanation for it.

Meanwhile, abundant gimmickry (including a blossoming teen-age girl who dusts off the bases) and the lowest ticket prices in the league (bleacher seats go for 85 cents) have failed to lure larger regular-season crowds.

While the Orioles always manage to turn a profit, complaints are frequent about traffic, parking and the 53,000-seat stadium, which has inadequate covering, too many poles and no toilet seats.

But Cashen insists that the heart of the problem is geographic. "All we have to draw on is a metropolitan area population of two million people," he says. It is the smallest in the majors and replete with the blue collars to boot.

Just 40 miles to the south is Washington, with Bob and Ted and Denny McLain. The Phillies are 100 miles to the north in Philadelphia. To the west is Maryland's Appalachia, and in the opposite direction is the Eastern Shore, which spiritually is still part of the Confederacy.

But if excellence is boring, then the Orioles are guilty. They won their division by 15 games in 1970 and by 19 games in 1969 and went undefeated in the league play-offs both years.

"The one thing we've never had here is a real pennant race," says Cashen. Should one develop this year, as he is hoping, it would provide what he calls "the real yardstick" for measuring Oriole fans.

You Can't Beat Joe Leonard's Hours

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Officially, Joe Leonard worked at his job only three weekends all of last year. It didn't affect his style terribly. Joe came to town in black alligator shoes, wearing a pin-striped dark gray suit, with a pink shirt and a wide tie.

But Joe did admit the inactivity bugged him. He is a racing driver, and only three races in 1970 left him with a lot of time on his hands.

"I did 25 pushups every morning," he said, "and 25 more every night. It was like Jack Nicklaus hitting only three PGA tournaments in a year."

Since Joe is one of the 10 top racing drivers in the country, if not the world, since auto racing ostensibly is booming as the second largest spectator sport in this country (exceeded only by horse racing) and since Joe looked in ruddy good health, why the lack of work?

"We didn't," he said, "have the money to field two cars in every race."

"We" is the Vels Parnelli Jones racing team, for which Joe is the driver. It is the most successful team in auto racing. Al Unser, his teammate, won the coveted Indianapolis 500 and earned $494,000 in prize money. The team totaled $880,000 for 1970, which isn't peanuts.

"But it also wound up $180,000 in the hole," said Joe. "It costs $100,000 just to put a car on a track, another $100,000 for accessories, and those are just bare minimums."

So Unser, the star of the stable, drove in all 12 USAC (United States Auto Club) events, and Joe twiddled his thumbs. "It was feathers for me," he said.

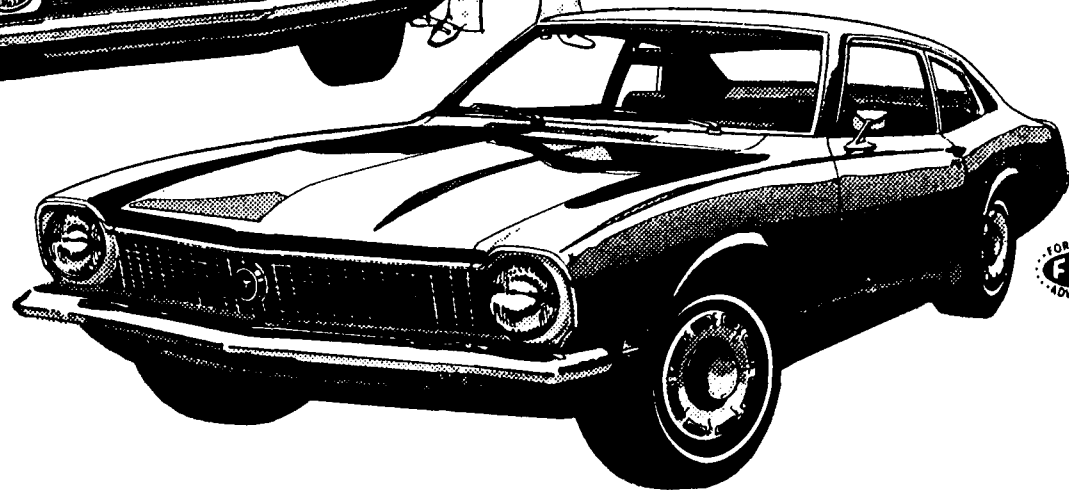

Don't worry about Joe, though. He has a contract which insures a certain income he won't say how much—

Panther Jury
Is Out
for 30 Hours

By PETER COWEN
Associated Press Writer
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Black Panther Chairman Bobby G. Seale, accused of giving an order two years ago today for the slaying of a party member, awaits a verdict from a jury weighing capital charges against him and a local Panther leader. The jury of five blacks and seven whites deliberated 3½ hours Wednesday, then retired without reaching a decision in the six-month-old Superior Court trial of Seale and Ericka Huggins.

The two Black Panthers are charged with kidnaping resulting in death and aiding and abetting murder, both capital offenses that could result in death penalties, plus conspiracy to kidnap and to murder in the shooting of Alex Rackley of New York City.

Judge Harold M. Mulvey, instructing the jurors Wednesday, told them not to draw inferences from Seale's failure to testify and to consider the possibility that testimony of some prosecution witnesses "may be colored" by their status as un-sentenced prisoners.

The judge said a defendant has a right not to testify and the prosecution bears the burden of proving the charges.

The state's case rests primarily on the testimony of George Sams Jr., whom the defense blames for the killing, and of Warren Kimbro, who has admitted shooting Rackley in the head on Sams' orders.

In weighing their testimony that of two other witnesses who admitted participation in the events leading to Rackley's death, the judge advised the jury to remember that the four are "confessed criminals" and "may be looking for favors in the disposition of their cases."

Mulvey also told the jurors that in considering Mrs. Huggins' testimony they should take into account "her interest in the outcome of the trial and any motive she might have for not telling the truth."

Mulvey ruled that all of the evidence except two tape recordings would be put in the jury room. He said the jury could ask to have the tapes played.

One recording includes an introduction by Mrs. Huggins to an interrogation of Rackley 2½ days before he was killed. In the tape, which Mrs. Huggins claimed she helped make only because of her fear of Sams, she can be heard accusing Rackley of being an informer. The prosecution claims that such suspicions by Mrs. Huggins and others led to Rackley's death.

About 100 demonstrators who had gathered in support of Seale and Mrs. Huggins on the town Green across from the courthouse converged on the rear of the building as the defendants were leaving Wednesday.

Breaking in on Pro
Golf Just One Big Financial Squeeze

By HARRY KING
Associated Press Writer
NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — To the Rolfe Demings, the professional golf tour is less than big paychecks and plush living.

Deming is a rabbit, a non-exempt professional.

To him, and the many others like him, the tour is a struggle to make ends meet.

"I won $9,000 last year and the people who are backing me gave me $10,000," Deming said. "But it cost me just under $20,000...and I'm cheap."

"I had my wife and two children with me for a while and we took a grill with us," he said. "We'd get some hamburger and fix our own meals."

Deming's family is home in Monominee, Mich., at the moment.

"There's no use in me taking the grill...I can't even cook water," he said.

Deming, 31, was playing in Shreveport last week when a friend took him to dinner.

"That was the first time I had a steak in a month," he said. "I'm a hamburger and cafeteria man."

"When we went out west we stayed in some $7-a-night motels with questionable reputations," he said. "But, the price was right."

His 3-year-old car has started on its second 100,000 miles.

Deming is among the 123 pros who teed up today at the Maumelle Country Club in the $25,000 Maumelle Open, a PGA satellite.

He made expenses Wednesday, shooting a 3-under-par 69 to tie for low-pro honors playing on a team that tied for third. His two checks totaled $341.

Deming left a club job three years ago to follow the elusive pot of gold on the tour.

"The pros who come on the tour are either top college players, amateurs like Bob Murphy, Deane Beman and Ron Cerrudo or club pros," he said. "The college players are usually the best and the amateurs have pretty much had their way in the big amateur tournaments. The club pros usually win the local pro-am every week or finish in the first four or five. All these guys are used to winning."

"Then they come on the tour and they may not even get to play," he said. "After awhile you begin to lose confidence in yourself. You begin to wonder about your ability."

Qualifying on Monday for the few spots open in the week's event is essential to the non-exempt players.

What happens when you don't qualify on Monday?

"You cry a lot," Deming said.

"Seriously, you miss qualifying by a stroke or so and you have nothing to do until the next Monday," he said. "When that happens there's no way you can work on your game. You'd have no place to go, no place to practice."

"Tournaments like this (Maumelle) are great," he said. "Like this week, there are 100 players at Fort Worth and another 130 here. When there is only one tournament, there are 144 golfers playing and another 100 doing nothing."

If a player qualifies for the tournament proper and survives the 36-hole cut, he gains an exemption at the next tour stop.

"An exemption means there is some kind of order to your life," Deming said. "You can plan your week."

Some pros object to the term rabbit, but not Deming. He says that some of the players recently asked that the term rabbit be stricken from news releases.

"The next week one writer couldn't figure out what to say about the qualifiers, so he called them 'fringe' players and 'marginal' players. That really grated on the players."

"I have nothing against the term rabbit...I still believe in the Easter Bunny," he said. "Have you ever been to a Playboy Club and seen those bunnies. Rabbits aren't all bad."

Miss Bacon Cited for Contempt

SEATTLE (AP) — Leslie Bacon has been cited for contempt of court and jailed for refusing to answer a federal grand jury's question about the U.S. Capitol bombing despite being granted limited immunity.

Miss Bacon, 19-year-old anti-war activist, was ordered jailed by Judge William Goodwin "for the life of the grand jury," which ends next March, or until she answers the questions.

Her attorneys contended the limited immunity from prosecution granted Wednesday was too narrow. They said they would appeal Goodwin's ruling to the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco.

Jennie Rhine, one of the Atherton, Calif., girl's attorneys, said "most all" the questions had been answered by her client in earlier testimony before the jury.

Miss Bacon cited constitutional grounds in her refusal. Previously, she had been ordered to answer all questions about the attempted firebombing of a New York City bank. She is charged in New York with conspiracy in planning the attempt.

Miss Bacon's attorneys said they were trying to determine whether the contempt order took precedence over the New York warrant.

Federal authorities took the girl's possessions to city jail from a hotel. She was brought to Seattle on April 29, after being arrested in Washington, D.C. April 27 as a material witness in the Capitol bombing and held under $100,000 bail.

Among the questions asked Miss Bacon in open court were:

—Whether she told anyone "that you came to Washington, D.C. to participate in the plans to bomb the Capitol."

—Whether she had collected money in Washington and said she was "going to Boston to get explosives for the Capitol bombing."

—If she had attended meetings in Virginia during January and February "at which the Capitol bombing was discussed."

—If she knew the people who traveled from Seattle to Ann Arbor, Mich., in February to plan the Mayday demonstrations in Washington, D.C.

—To describe a conversation in Washington, D.C. with Jeff Leibling, Chris Lamb, Stuart Albert, Judy Gumbo, Colin Neiberger, Michael Tola, Terry Taub and Ken Kelley.

—And to "describe for the grand jury a conversation on March 1, 1971 at 2226 M St. N.W., Washington, D.C., in which Stuart Albert made the remark in connection with the bomb used in the U.S. Capitol that it contained 20 sticks."

"I have no intention of answering those questions," Miss Bacon told the judge.

OSCEOLA, Ark. (AP)—State Racing Commission member Guy Newcomb of Osceola said Wednesday night he had not made up his mind whether to voluntarily refuse to sit as a member of the commission when it conducts a hearing Monday on whether to revoke the franchise of Southland Racing Corp. of West Memphis.

Alston Jennings of Little Rock, attorney for Emprise, Inc., of Buffalo, N.Y., suggested in a letter to Commission Chairman J. W. Benefield of England that he would file a motion charging Newcomb with "bias and prejudice" against Southland if Newcomb participates in the hearing.

Newcomb said he had not seen the letter nor had he talked to any of the other commission members about Jennings' request.

"I've been out of town and all I know is what I've read in the papers," Newcomb said. "I just don't know what action I'll take." He refused further comment.

Jennings asked the commission to refuse to allow Newcomb to participate if he refused to disqualify himself.

The proposed motion cites Newcomb for "bias and prejudice" for public statements he made last year and this spring about Southland and Emprise principal stockholder and West Memphis greyhound track.

Single-Member Districts for the House

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A tentative proposal for single-member districts in the Arkansas House of Representatives was approved Wednesday by the state Board of Apportionment. The board also adopted a proposal for redrawing state Senate districts in Pulaski County.

The board plans to meet on Friday to finish work on House redistricting, completing legislative reapportionment more than 2½ months past the Feb. 1 deadline set by the state Constitution. The board had adopted a statewide Senate redistricting plan with the exception of Pulaski County last Monday.

Eugene T. Kelley, executive secretary to Gov. Dale Bumpers said that a lot of incumbents wound up in a district with another incumbent, but he said he did not know how many.

The House redistricting plan was tentatively approved subject to the board making adjustments of some districts to make them more nearly conform to county lines. In addition, the board did not decide on one of two methods that were proposed for redistricting Randolph, Clay, Greene, Lawrence and Sharp counties in Northeast Arkansas.

Bumpers said he had no idea of how dramatically the reapportionment would alter the makeup of the legislature, but he predicted the election of at least one Negro to the Senate and possibly several blacks in the House.

The board's Senate redistricting plan for Pulaski County creates two districts north of the Arkansas River, including North Little Rock, and three south of the river, including Little Rock. It carves out five House districts north of the river, nine south of the Arkansas and one that is predominantly in North Little Rock but which extends across the river into central and east Little Rock.

The proposal keeps Pulaski County's Senate representation at five, but increases the number of House seats from 13 to 15.

Sen. Ben Allen, a friend of Bumpers and a member of the governor's inner circle, is the only one of the five Senate incumbents from Pulaski County who will have a district to himself. The plan would put Sens. Oscar Alagood and Jim Fowler of Little Rock in one district and Sens. Max Howell and Joe Ford of Little Rock in another.

Bumpers said in answer to newsmen's questions that Allen talked to him at one time about the possibility of obtaining a "free" Senate district, but the senator "never tried to put any pressure on me in any way."

"He's a very popular senator," Bumpers said. "Sen. Allen can fend for himself."

The board consisting of Bumpers, Atty. Gen. Ray H. Thornton Jr. and Secretary of State Kelly Bryant adopted Thornton's plan for Senate and House redistricting of the area of Pulaski County north of the river.

By a vote of 2-1, with Thornton casting the dissenting vote, the board adopted a proposal adopted by Kelley, for Senate redistricting of counties south of the river.

It was Kelley's plan that left Allen by himself. Thornton's proposal for redistricting the south part of Pulaski County would have pitted Allen against Alagood.

Bumpers said no consideration was given to which incumbents would be affected by redistricting.

Ending 2nd Tour in Vietnam This GI Still Owes, U.S. Says

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael Haley is getting his discharge from the military next month after a second combat tour in Vietnam, but the Army is marking his debt to his country as unpaid.

The service says Spec. 4 Haley owes $3,724 because of a financial mess resulting from a five-month wait for orders a year ago.

Until the situation is straightened out, Haley is giving up his salary except for $40 a month for his wife. "He's been told he can have $25 a month for himself but so far he hasn't requested it," the Army said.

Haley's pay, the Army says, is $330.90 a month plus $65 for combat duty. As a Spec. 4 with less than four years service, it is mandatory that his dependents get $40 of that amount. The Army provides them another $130.60 not counted in his basic pay.

Haley, 23, of Champaign, Ill., stirred things up when he told an Associated Press reporter in Vietnam last year the Army was asking him to return the money he was paid during the 128 days it listed him as absent Feb. 2, 1970. The Army charged him with "excess leave" for the period Sept. 3, 1969 to Jan. 7, 1970, and as AWOL during his "blackout" trip from Jan. 13 to Feb. 1. He was told he had to pay back the money he received, meanwhile, for the five months.

Shortly afterward, Haley volunteered for his second tour in Vietnam and told his story to the AP. Soon thereafter, the Army said it had goofed "due to administrative error."

So the Sept. 3, 1969 to Jan. 6, 1970 absence was changed from "excess leave" to "authorized absence—not chargeable as leave." However, the "blackout" period remained AWOL and his release date was set back from May 3 to June 3 this year.

But then the Army found that during the months he was wandering, Haley obtained from Chant Air Force Base, Ill., pay which the Air Force neglected to report to the Army. Also it found that allotments Haley had made through the Army Finance Center in Indianapolis also were not deducted from his unit pay file.

Then it found that on the basis of promotion orders sent from Ft. Carson to Vietnam and later ruled invalid, Haley was paid the rate for a Spec. 5 rather than a Spec. 4. So he was charged for another $545.

The Army said Tuesday that Haley's debt at that point amounted to $5,813.27. The amount he had paid back under the original mixup, was credited on his debt, leaving him owing $3,724.99.

This he began paying back in February. At about $365 a month it would take him at least 10 months to clear the books, and he can only make four payments before his discharge. People in his hometown are helping out with a collection in his behalf and there is a chance the military may forgive some of the money.

The Army can't keep him beyond his June 3 discharge since he's accused of no wrongdoing. But though he comes home soon from Vietnam, his woes with the military apparently are far from over.

3 Acquitted in Louisiana Fraud Case

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The U.S. attorney's office today studied evidence in the Louisiana Loan & Thrift Corp. trial to decide what action to take on a perjury charge against Atty. Gen. Jack Gremlion, one of the three defendants acquitted of federal charges of fraud and conspiracy.

Gremlion, state Rep. Salvador Anzelmo of New Orleans and Arkansas businessman Ernest Bartlett Jr. were found innocent Wednesday on all 15 counts by a U.S. District Court jury that deliberated five days after hearing six weeks of testimony.

The indictment accused the defendants of conspiracy and fraud in the sale of securities, mail fraud and the sale of unregistered securities.

The perjury charge, which alleged that Gremlion falsely testified before a grand jury that he had no "economic interest" in LL&T, also alleged that he testified falsely regarding a $700 check he claimed as a campaign contribution.

Testimony at the trial indicated that Gremlion had 10,000 shares in the firm and that the $700 check was a dividend check for the stock he held in the name of William A. Glennon Jr., a New Orleans attorney.

The perjury indictment came in 1969 several months after the fraud-conspiracy indictment, which named Gremlion, Anzelmo, Bartlett, Charles Ritchey of Metairie, former LL&T

Marijuana Draws Split Opinions

WASHINGTON (AP) — A National Commission on Marijuana and Dangerous Drugs was told today marijuana probably is dangerous but should be legalized.

The testimony followed the claims Monday of two doctors that the drug produced distortion of perception and reality in test subjects and the opinion of another doctor that alcohol produces similar results.

John Kaplan, a law professor at Stanford University, told the commission today in prepared testimony he believes marijuana to be dangerous but added research since 1894 has yet to show how dangerous the drug may be.

"If the marijuana laws worked," he said, "I would be strongly in favor of them but they, like Prohibition, do not work. They divide the young from the old and are propelling us to a national crisis of confidence of major dimensions. Therefore they must go."

Monday, Drs. Harold Kolansky and William Moore outlined their heavily publicized study of 38 psychiatric patients which they said showed marijuana "produces a brain syndrome marked by distortion of perception and reality which leads ..." to impaired judgment, lagging attention spans, slowing of a sense of time and trouble talking.

They concluded the mental problems observed in their patients resulted from marijuana smoking and recommended a "get tough" policy to control the drug.

However, Dr. Bertram S. Brown, director of the National Institute of Mental Health and also a witness before the commission, said in an interview it probably would be possible to find 38 marijuana smokers who had graduated from college with honors.

Brown told the commission he was not ready to recommend legalizing the drug but "I do know that the present penalty structure itself is already out of keeping with what we know about the drug."

The Kolansky-Moore findings also were disputed by drug expert Dr. Norman Zinberg of Harvard. He told a news conference the findings, first disclosed in April, would be hard not to apply to a group of college beer drinkers.

Dr. Joel Fort of San Francisco submitted a written critique saying the Kolansky-Moore paper is "full of inaccurate and inflammatory statements" with a conclusion of "some amateurish social criticism that might have been written by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's speech writers."

president, and Joseph Kavanaugh, a Baton Rouge attorney.

Ritchey pleaded no contest to the fraud-conspiracy charges and awaits sentencing. Kavanaugh was granted a severance and will be tried later.

Glennon, a key government witness, and the late A. Clayton James, former state banking commissioner, were named co-conspirators but were not indicted.

LI&T opened for business May 26, 1966. A petition for reorganization was filed in November 1968 and the firm was reorganized under federal bankruptcy laws.

The government charged that the men conspired to have the firm put under state supervision to avoid supervision by the federal Securities and Exchange Commission. Then, the government said, they used political pressure to keep the state Banking Commission from regulating the company.

U.S. Atty. Gerald Gallinghouse told the jury that the defendants received high profits from the firm even though it later went bankrupt.

The defense contended there was no conspiracy or fraud and that the firm simply failed.

Since going into receivership, a court-appointed trustee has made two disbursements to depositors. Those who had invested $150 or less have received all the money they had deposited. Larger investors have received varying amounts. Approximately 60 per cent of the total of $2.5 million has been returned.

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—As civilization creeps forward in Africa and Asia, eating into the jungle and the veldt, more and more wild animals are becoming endangered. It may come to the point where Noah and his ark will be needed again, but until that dire day, there is hope from an unexpected quarter.

Zoos and wild animal parks, which used to be looked on as dreadful places for animals to be kept, may be the 20th-century ark. The Los Angeles area has several and at least two are taking their responsibilities seriously.

Both Lion Country Safari and the soon-to-open Africa U.S.A. are designed to make money. They are, primarily, amusement parks, places to take the family on a Sunday afternoon. But, as the money rolls in, they are also doing something about conservation.

"Our main theme is wild life conservation," says Bud Nagel, of Lion Country Safari.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., said Tuesday that a proposed temporary river industry training school at Russellville was not needed.

The establishment of such a school is being considered by the state Employment Security Division and state Education Department.

J. Merle Lemley, administrator of the ESD, said it was his understanding that the National River Academy at Helena was in need of some temporary assistance and the proposed school at Russellville could help out.

Alexander said in a telegram to Lemley that he was opposed to the school.

"I feel that the National River Academy is doing an excellent job in training personnel from throughout the nation for inland waterways navigation," Alexander said. "The academy can and will accommodate anyone from Arkansas who wishes to learn a water transportation vocation."

He has long advocated what he calls "affection-training," using kindness to conquer the animals' inborn fear of man. He is hopeful that his cheetahs, reared with affection, will therefore produce baby cheetahs.

Africa U.S.A.—Helfer had one before, but it was flooded out—will open in July. It has 1,200 acres and its animal population will number around 1,000. The public will see the animals in cages, but Helfer's staff walks them several times a day.

It is not unusual to see a tiger, ambling along pleasantly on a leash held by a pretty teen-age girl. Lion cubs are in cribs and a baby gorilla walks around in diapers.

Helfer says he is concentrating on endangered species—the cheetah, white rhino, tigers (there are no tigers in Lion Country Safari—they climb fences too nimbly), ostriches.

And he says he may soon have to include some native species, too. There's a move on, backed by Gov. Reagan, to allow a hunting season for California's native mountain lion. Helfer thinks this is wrong, and is prepared to add mountain lions to his park soon.

They have been so successful breeding the endangered scimitar-horned oryx that they hope, within two years, to send some back to Kenya where that particular species is in deep trouble.

Cheetahs are a more difficult problem. They are fast disappearing in Africa—Ralph Helfer, of Africa U.S.A., says they will be completely gone from Africa in 10 years, at the current rate of disappearance—but they also are very difficult to breed in captivity.

Lion Country Safari has an entire section devoted only to cheetahs. They are hopeful that, in their very limited form of captivity, the cheetahs will breed. But the park's Nagel says that the animal, during its mating season, becomes a keener hunter than at other times.

"How do you stimulate that instinct here?" he says. "We can't give them wild animals to hunt down."

Helfer, a movie and television animal trainer turned wild animal park entrepreneur, thinks he's solved that problem. He thinks it is fear of man which causes certain species—such as cheetahs—to refuse to breed in captivity.

He has long advocated what he calls "affection-training," using kindness to conquer the animals' inborn fear of man. He is hopeful that his cheetahs, reared with affection, will therefore produce baby cheetahs.

A letter from Philadelphia reads in part: "I remember A. B. Y and Z before their places in columns were taken by North, South, East and West. In the old days Z didn't make every hand. Doesn't he ever get set nowadays?"

Z decided that his four clubs made an unusual no-trump undesirable. If he bid it, Y would become declarer and Z did not relish the prospect. So he passed after B opened with one spade. The bidding progressed as one might expect and Z wound up as declarer at four diamonds doubled.

B won the first trick with the king of hearts and saw that a spade lead was in-

Dear Dr. Lamb—Is it possible to contract syphilis without sex? I have had many of the listed symptoms but the only place I could have gotten them would be a contaminated glass or something of that nature. Each symptom has been in the correct chronological order for the disease progression but it could easily be coincidence. I have been worrying about this for the past seven months. I have never had any type of sex with anyone.

Dear Reader—Yes, it is possible to become infected with syphilis without having sexual relations, although it is not very common. The germ that causes the disease can be transmitted in fluid such as saliva. The germ, however, will not live long outside of the body.

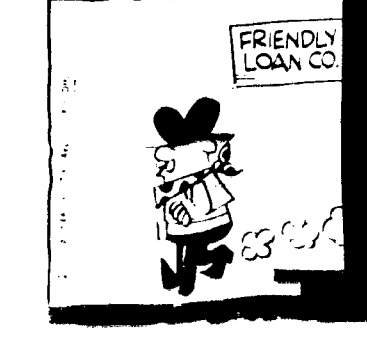

Amorous kissing with all that entails is one way of transmitting the disease. It is possible under ideal circumstances to transmit it from drinking glasses and bottles. The chances, however, that you have acquired

After this start there was no way for poor Z to get a trick out of dummy. He wound up losing two spade ruffs, four clubs and a heart for minus 700 and a bottom score. The best East and West could do as declarer would be to pick up 650 points.

"You boys still defend better than anyone," said Z. "I was afraid to double you," remarked A. "I've seen you perform too many miracles. This time you couldn't do anything because your opponents wouldn't let you in the lead."

TODAY'S QUESTION

You do bid three diamonds and your partner bids three spades. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Syphilis Germs Die Outside Body

syphilis, if it is true that you have not had any sexual relations with anyone, is relatively remote.

You can find out by having a blood test done through the venereal disease section of either your county or city health office. It would not be necessary for you to give your name. In fact, all such clinics are confidential. For young people, the parents need not know anything about it and the health office does not divulge any information about anyone they see—young or old.

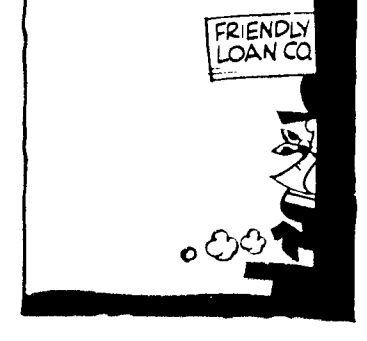

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have a decision to make which is very hard for me. I have a mole on my left cheek that has been there since I was a small girl (I am now 67). It is unsightly and the last few months it has grown some. It is about a half-inch in diameter. My doctor wants to take it off soon. Should I let him or have it taken off by a specialist or should I let it remain? He said he is certain it is not cancerous.

Dear Reader—Any mole any place on the body that begins to change in size or appearance should be removed. The only way to tell if it is cancer or not is to remove it and look at the section under a microscope. This also enables the doctor to tell whether or not all of the tumor has been removed in case it is cancerous. If it is removed, your scar should be almost unnoticeable. It is not a very difficult procedure. You should let your doctor go ahead and do what he has recommended.

This Actress Wants to Play First Lady—in Real Life

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — California has a recent history of voting for actors. Until Sen. George Murphy was defeated in the last election by John Tunney, actors were battling 1,000 at the polls—Murphy and Reagan and the late Wendell Corey won every job they ran for.

We will probably soon be confronted by the ultimate challenge to this theory of the invincibility of actors at the polls. Can an actress, married to a politician, work the same kind of magic?

"I think I can be a political asset to Al," says Marian McCargo, who is now Mrs. Alphonso Bell. Bell is a Republican congressman and there is a conviction hereabouts that he is going places. Marian says he's looking ahead.

"I think I can help him," she says, "whatever he wants to do—senator, governor, maybe even president."

She brings several assets to the fight, whatever and whenever it happens to be. There is her natural beauty and charm, of course, two very obvious talents. There is her dedication, sufficient to make her change from being a Democrat to re-registering as a Republican. And there is the family she brought with her.

Bell has three sons (some older children, too, but they don't count as political assets). Marian has four sons. Combined, and all now living together, they make a formidable group—seven boys, ranging in age from her 18-year-old to his six-year-old. What a snappy campaign picture that will make.

Marian McCargo
Would-be First Lady.

Actually, it was the boys who got them together. Two were friends, one of his and one of hers. Her son would play at his house and soon the two decided that the widower and the divorcee should get together.

"On the third date," Marian says, "I decided I would marry him—and I had said I'd never marry again. So I chased him and I caught him."

Bell is proud of his wife's acting accomplishments, and has no objection to her continuing to act. She realizes, however, that, under the political circumstances she'll have to be careful about the parts she accepts.

Her last was "Doctors' Wives," and she bristles at the suggestion that she might not have done it had she been Mrs. Bell at the time. She defends it. "It's not a dirty picture"—and points to the fact that her husband cheerfully hosted a special screening of Columbia had for it in Washington.

There was a party after the screening at a discotheque in the capital. Bell made headlines in Washington by the little talk he made at the party. He made a small joke about the fact that his wife, in the film, had a big scene in bed with somebody else's husband.

"Don't worry about that scene," Bell told the Washington crowd. "She's wearing a chastity belt—and I have the key."

That really shook them up, and Marian turned a nice shade of red. She says the resultant publicity brought a flock of dumb letters—"they really scared me"—and the suggestion that maybe she could achieve some notoriety by becoming "another Martha Mitchell."

Of course, one Martha Mitchell is already too many, so Marian is, momentarily, assuming a passive role in Washington. She sits in the House gallery, trying to learn all she can about the workings of government. She says she was never very political, so she has a lot to learn.

She's going on with her career, on the theory that "the better I do, the better it will be for him." If Bell goes on to bigger things, look for a rash of actress-politician marriages. Wouldn't you be more inclined to vote for, say, Spiro Agnew if he was married to, for example, Mae West?

FOOD FOR AMERICANS

Customary Foods Still Important

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Food and Nutrition Writer

Sounding a lot like a dirt farmer, which he is decidedly not, William B. Murphy, president of Campbell Soup Co., goes all-out for customary foods as opposed to modern synthetic ones.

"Certainly the more important customary foods in this country are wheat, rice, beef, corn, poultry and fish, beans and potatoes," he says.

"But of these great foods, only meat, poultry, fish and eggs have complete protein content—meaning they have built into them the eight essential amino acids, those amino acids that the body cannot build for itself. There are other forms of protein in other foods, but not complete, not sufficient unto themselves, as it were. Good sources of a certain limited type of protein, yes. But not complete protein like beef, for example.

"That is why we are hoping that we can, by genetic means, bring wheat, rice, corn, beans and potatoes to a higher level of protein quality. I think the answer will be yes," he says.

There have been vast improvements made in the quality of protein of corn, wheat and rice through successful and long continued research. Yet there is much more to be done.

"I would predict that within 10 years, with a layout of $10 million a year, the complete job could be done. Think of the rewards in terms of better nutrition for everyone, no matter what his income or inherited taste patterns are.

"If he or she prefers tortilla to pork and beans, a loaf of bread or a large potato pancake, well, these foods then will be sufficiently high in protein quality to fill the nutritional bill for them. It will then be a little difficult to find many cases of protein malnutrition—as we find so many cases today. Nutrition education will be a far different job than it is now."

All the foods produced by Campbell Soup Co. and its affiliated manufacturers, such as Pepperidge Farms, Swanson & Co. and Franco-American are basically common foods. But Campbell is also experimenting with textured vegetable protein, meaning soybean products.

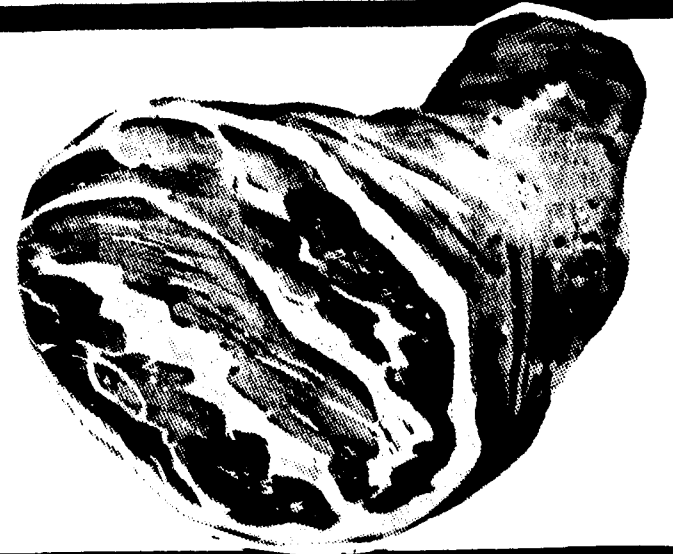

"Soybeans are good and valuable food. But compared to such natural foods as meat, poultry, fish textured protein is not up to the same quality of protein. The housewife may think they are. But that is the result of false information," he says.

G&F Promotes SE Ark. Lake

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Game and Fish Commission voted Tuesday to sponsor the construction of a $1.3 million control structure that would restore waters to St. Francis Lake near Marked Tree.
St. Francis Lake is on the St. Francis River between Trumann and Marked Tree.
Sponsorship by the commission clears the way for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to begin work on the project.
The control structure will be a concrete and steel-reinforced dam with a gate that will lower to drain off waters during flood periods. The lake is supposed to cover about 1,800 acres.

William Dillon receives his award as 1971 Outstanding FFA member.

William Dillon, Hope High School senior, was named the 1971 Outstanding FFA member at the annual Future Farmer Awards program Friday, May 14. The award is presented each year to the FFA member who shows the most progress in FFA work during the year.
Randy Byers received a leather belt and was named "World's Champion Ticket Salesman." Glen Wade of Buffalo Shoe Shop was named Honorary Chapter Farmer, highest honor the organization gives to those outside the chapter. Mr. Wade has given boots to the All Around FFA Rodeo Cowboy for ten years, and this year not only the winner, Parker Powell, but the first runnerup Jimmy Langston, received boots.

Trophies for All-Around Teacher were given the four FFA advisers: Troy Buck, Don Murphy, H. M. Smith, and Don Thompson.

The program followed a picnic for senior members at the Buck Ranch and included the announcement of next year's officers: Jabo Sanders, president; Glendon Martin, vice president; Doug Waters, secretary; David Butler, treasurer; Rodney Burke, sentinel; Steve Caldwell, reporter; and Danny Joyce, junior adviser.

Bond Dealer Abuses Under Study

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Securities Commissioner William F. Sherman said Tuesday that new rules to curb "abusive practices" by bond dealers had been adopted.
Sherman said an employee would be added to the security division to investigate bond dealings July 1.
The new rules will require all broker-dealers to keep a complaint file and keep complaints made against the firm for three years.
Certain practices prohibited in the rules include bank manipulation of bonds through adjusted trading, excessive mark-ups, failure to accurately represent material facts in the sale of municipal bonds or government securities, and misuse of a firm's name.

Bank Records Probed for Subversion

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The leader of a House committee probing what he terms subversives in the antiwar movement says he'll disclose soon what he calls surprising information uncovered in subpoenaed bank records.

Internal Security Committee Chairman Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., declined to supply details as the panel entered its second day of enquiry of two peace groups that organized massive demonstrations here over the past weeks.

But Ichord said Tuesday the "bank records have revealed some very interesting information."

In a statement after Tuesday opening session, Jerry Gordon, coordinator for the National Peace Action Coalition, one of the groups being investigated, said he was outraged by "the secret seizure" of his group's bank records.

"The first information we had that the committee had subpoenaed our records was in Ichord's hearing when Chairman Ichord revealed that the records were already in his possession," Gordon stated.

Gordon, who said he is not a Communist but that his organization is "open to every group in the country" including radicals and Socialists as well as Democrats and Republicans, told reporters the committee seeks "to smear the antiwar movement."

"To continue the war abroad, (President) Nixon and the reactionary congressmen who support him are waging war at home—this one against the peace movement. They are prepared to scuttle the constitutional guarantees of free speech, free assembly and freedom of association to silence the voices of peace," he added.

The probe involves NPAC, which Ichord charges is dominated by the Socialist Workers Party, and the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice, in which the chairman says members of the Communist Party USA play a major role.

NPAC sponsored the April 24 rally. PCPJ and the Mayday Collective backed the May 3-6 actions that included attempts to tie up Washington traffic.

Jerusalem Extremists Fight

JERUSALEM (AP) — A hundred Jewish "Black Panthers" charging discrimination against Jewish immigrants from Africa and Asia fought street battles for six hours Tuesday with police. Ten policemen and several demonstrators were injured in Israel's worst rioting in years.

Police said they arrested 74 protesters, who claimed that Jews from Africa and Asia are forced to live in slums and are deprived of educational opportunities. The Panthers organized three months ago.

The police had authorized a Panther demonstration at a square in the city but moved in with clubs and water hoses when the demonstrators left the square and marched down a main street. The Panthers responded with a barrage of stones, and they smashed shop windows.

Asian and African Jews have long claimed they are discriminated against by Israelis of European stock who dominate political, economic and military life in Israel. But this was the first serious outbreak of ethnic fighting since 1958, when there was a similar demonstration in Haifa.

Big U.S. Check Given to Mena

MENA, Ark. (AP) — Joe Gillespie, a representative of the Economic Development Administration, presented the city of Mena with a $100,000 check Tuesday that represents the first payment toward a gas standby system to serve the Mena area.

Richard Shewmaker, an official of the Western Arkansas Planning and Development District, said the $260,000 project will provide an adequate gas system for the city.

Sarver Says He Backed Reform Suit

By KATHY GOSNELL
Pine Bluff Commercial
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Robert Sarver, 40, former state correction commissioner, claims a crucial role in the lawsuit that led to a federal court finding that Arkansas prisons were unconstitutionally operated. The case would not have come to trial without his assistance, he said.

Sarver, fired March 29 by the state Board of Correction, referred in an interview to a lawsuit filed by 24 state prison inmates in 1969. He was a defendant in the case.

The ex-commissioner said he consulted closely with attorneys for the inmates, pointing out things that needed to be brought out in the attack on the constitutionality of prison operations.

"I cooperated in every way I possibly could," Sarver said, adding that he would beyond the requirements imposed on prison officials. "I don't think there's any question but what a prison administrator who is not seeking truth could very well have prevented that trial from ever coming off, as far as getting witnesses to testify is concerned," he said.

Sarver said he took that course of action because "having lived with it as long as I did, I was satisfied that the complaints were justified."

He said he was convinced that lawsuits had become the "only approach" to prison reform because legislatures will not otherwise provide adequate funds for thorough reform.

A positive tone with the General Assembly brings a response that "You don't need any more money," he said. A negative tone, he added, brings this legislative response: "We won't give you more money to waste."

An honest appraisal of the Arkansas prison system would show "you can't say much good about it," Sarver continued, despite some valuable features that he said should be retained in future programs.

Sarver said he felt no guilt

GIRL AGAINST MARRIAGE

Dear Helen:

I'm another "Remaining Single." I agree with the girl and Steve who say marriage is not for them. Most of the marriages I've seen are failures. The man gets drunk with the boys (or the girls), and the woman stays home with the kids.

No matter how much they seem to love each other at first, they end up nagging and fighting, and it's mainly the man's fault.

Not all of us girls want to become men's play-boys or baby machines. They have their fun, then they leave, either before marriage or afterwards. They basically don't like women except "in their place."

It makes me mad to think that I'll be considered a "failure" if I don't get married, no matter how successful I am, or that there'll be whispers about me being strange.

I'm not saying I will never marry, but I do resent feeling that it's expected of me. From what I've observed, in my own family and elsewhere, a woman is a fool to scrap a career for four walls, a bunch of squalling kids and a man who isn't as smart as she is.

Up with women's liberation! I like guys. I just wouldn't want to marry one.

Dear Helen:

By the time you change your mind (if you do) a great many more men will be considering women as equals, not "play-boys." Any girl who thinks she must "give up a career for four walls, a bunch of squalling kids and a basic woman hater" has studied a species of married life that won't be around much longer. Why don't you interview young, happily married career girls and get a different slant?—H.

I'm a 19-year-old stable young man. I've been going with this girl for two years and intended to marry her, but she has been playing me for a fool.

I keep finding her with other guys, and I know she wants to break up with me but, like a dummy, I keep begging her to come back. She does, probably out of pity.

You'd think I'd have more pride, but I can't lose her.

Maybe you can tell me, Helen, how to fall out of love.

—CAN'T HACK IT
Dear C.H.I.:

Make a date with a cute girl who has just been dumped by a two-timing boy friend. Spend no more than ten minutes each downgrading your "ex" and then get on with the new. It won't happen like that, but you'd be surprised how fast you can fall out of love when there's a place to land.—H.

Dear Helen:

My mother is pretty far out, a lot better than most parents, except when it comes to this 17-year-old boy I want to date. He wants me to go to his prom with him, which is up on the mountains. His Mom will even come down to get me and bring me home, but "No!"

Mom says she trusts me but doesn't trust him, mainly because she thinks he does dope. He really doesn't, but even great parents get paranoid if you mention grass, and she read one of his letters that asked me what I'd think if he started. I told him I'd break up with him, but she won't believe he isn't like "the rest of those wild boys in his town."

I've liked him for seven months. How can I make Mom see he's just a normal kid—no angel, but not a devil either?—IS IT HATE?

Dear I.H.H.:

You make a scary boy and a suspicious parent compatible the same way you "condition" children to overcome their fear of animals: a little at a time.

Casualty mention his achievements in school and elsewhere—or have an older friend do it. Get his relatives and yours together (not hard in a small town). Ask permission for him to visit and bring your mother into the conversation. Explain his attitude on grass. If he's straight, she'll thaw. Good luck!—H.
